

CommandN

Contributed by Rocky
Saturday, 17 December 2005
Last Updated Monday, 19 December 2005

CommandN is presented by four internet net heads on a weekly basis and provides great hints, tips and general internet news of the kind you'd expect to find on TheRegister or ZDNet. Tech, Web, News and Video are the buzz words at CommandN.

Read on to find out why this video podcast is one of our favourite weekly PSP downloads.

How to get CommandN

The easiest way to get CommandN on your PSP is to automatically download and install with Sony's Media Manager RSS Feeds section. You can do that by adding this URL to the your feeds.

Alternatively you can download each episode in one of a variety of formats and then convert it to the PSP's AVC format using a free tool such as PSPVideo9. We suggest downloading the h264 version for the best quality.

You can also visit the CommandN download page to grab any of the past episodes.

CommandN comes is a whole variety of download flavours as they try to accommodate all potential users.

The Hosts

The show is ably fronted by Amber Mac and Mike Lazazzera, with Brian McKechnie and Jeff MacArthur spotting their own sections within the show (click name to visit their personal websites). Amber Mac Mike Lazazzera Brian McKechnie Jeff MacArthur

The Show

The buzz word on CommandN is "Tech". Technology news and internet news is plentiful here. Even though I like to think I keep up with all the latest internet news, CommandN manages to cover items I had not heard about before, or had heard of but was interested to hear more details on.

The presenters are well informed. If you keep track of the main presenters you'll see they are well connected in the industry and well placed to bring you the very best of breaking net news.

Each show lasts about 5 minutes and is our number one video podcast to watch on the PSP!